BETHEL, CONNECTICUT

St. Mary School prepared me for high school; it taught me to challenge myself academically, to strive for greatness, and to keep Christ first. I found I was particularly prepared in mathematics my freshman year, and I feel I have always been especially prepared for English classes. St. Mary provided me with a work ethic that still sticks with me today. I truly feel it prepared me to strive to take the more challenging classes and thrive in them.

Saint Mary School consistently scores above the national norms in both Math and English standardized testing.

Thanks to the instruction I received at St. Mary's, I feel like I was prepared to examine, interpret and analyze what I read in honors courses in high school. Incorporating English Language Arts into other subjects such as History greatly helped to prepare me for the rigors of high school writing assignments.

St. Mary School of Bethel students enter Immaculate High School well prepared in Math and Language Arts. In addition to educating good students the grade school experience has molded them to be good people. There is not a curriculum in place for that, as the key to this success belongs to the St. Mary School community. St. Mary students are inspired by examples of faith, encouraged by an environment that serves others, and motivated by a desire to excel academically.

Saint Mary School has a special place in my heart. My eighth grade math teacher pushed my classmates and I to a high level of learning, confident that we could achieve success in advanced studies of math. This prepared me to skip a level upon my freshman entrance exam and I am currently taking a sophomore honors geometry class. This has helped me in high school and I am very grateful.

Looking back on my experience at St. Mary School, I realize just how important those years were in providing me a foundation for success. Learning in an academically challenging and supportive environment gave me the confidence I needed to excel in high school. Now at Colgate University, I draw upon the same ideals and core values that St. Mary School taught me then to help me succeed today. St. Mary School not only fostered success in the classroom, but outside as well. The seamless transition between the classroom, extracurriculars, and friendships at St. Mary School has proved invaluable in my adjustment to college life.

SMS prepared me for high school and the real world as I was taught how to be held accountable for both my actions and my academics.
